GOA CASHEW (KAJU OR CAJU)

Cashew, also known as Kaju or Caju, is a well-known and beloved fruit in Goa and is recognized as the official State Fruit. Goa Cashew is known for its high-quality kernels and is unique due to being primarily organic plantations, introduced by the Portuguese in 1570 for soil conservation and land development purposes. Cashews from Goa are famous for their nutritional advantages, providing vitamins, minerals, magnesium, iron, calcium, and more. They can be included in both savoury and sweet dishes for a diverse range of culinary options.

UNIQUENESS

The cashew tree, known for thriving in tropical climates, was introduced to Goa to help control soil erosion on steep coastal slopes. An unusual method utilized in cashew cultivation is letting the fruits ripen completely on the tree instead of picking them prematurely. Only the fruits that have naturally fallen are gathered to improve their taste and nutrients by increasing sugars, proteins in the nut, Vitamin C in the flesh, and other necessary elements.

METHOD OF PRODUCTION

The Cashew tree in Goa is a perennial type that can grow as tall as 12 meters and spread up to 25 meters. It is interesting that the cashew nut first develops at the tip of the stem. During the progression, the stem enlarges slowly, ultimately creating the cashew apple, with the nut connected externally to it. The Cashew tree in Goa is identifiable by its unique growth pattern.
