

Silk Saree – Draped in Heritage, Designed for Today

Saree, a piece of cloth, a type of garment in the women's wear section. Do we know only this, or do we have more to explore and learn about sarees?

In India, more than 100 different methods are well-known and in use across different states. In Maharashtra, women wear a saree in nauvari style, Tamil Nadu women wear a saree in Madisar style, and Gujarat women wear a saree in Seedha Palu style. All parts of India have established their own individuality through the saree.

One thing that remains intact is its connection with being feminine, cultural, and a work of art.

REAL STORY

Ramesh, a 55-year-old master weaver, begins his day before sunrise, carefully setting up the loom with threads as fine as his patience. Each saree he creates is not just fabric, but a story of tradition, precision, and dedication passed down through generations.

For months, he weaves tirelessly, ensuring every motif aligns perfectly, every color blends seamlessly, and every detail reflects his unmatched skill. The rhythm of the loom becomes his music, and the saree slowly takes shape under his steady hands.

To Ramesh, weaving is not just work—it is devotion. His sarees carry his soul, each piece a masterpiece born from discipline, care, and love for his craft.

Sarees in Indian Festivals and Traditions

Weddings: The bride's primary wedding dress in southern India is a Kanjeevaram saree adorned with pure gold zari. The Banarasi silk saree is a bride's dress in Bengal as well.

Festivals: It's a gold standard to wear silk sarees in festivals like Diwali, Durga Puja, Pongal, or Onam.

Rituals & Ceremonies: Silk sarees are often used in many functions, whether it's childbirth ceremonies, housewarming rituals, or anniversaries.

Temple Culture: Silk fabric is considered sacred, a symbol of purity and devotion.

Saree is made from various kinds of fabrics, but no fabric can match the premiumness and luxurious feel of silk.

Do you know?

Silk is suitable for both warm and cold weather wear.

Silk is the softest fabric.

Silk is less conducive to the growth of bacteria, dust mites, and other allergens.

Current Trends in Silk Sarees

To make traditional weaving methods appealing to younger generations, contemporary designers are fusing them with contemporary styles.

- Minimalist Designs – Minimalism is the trend, Minimalist design and colours are everywhere.
- Fusion Drapes – Experimenting with dhoti-style, belt-style, or pant-style drapes has become popular, giving the saree a chic edge.
- Pastel Shades – Pastel tones like peach, lavender, and mint green are very trendy these days.

This festival , Don't Just Celebrate

Choose the hands over machines

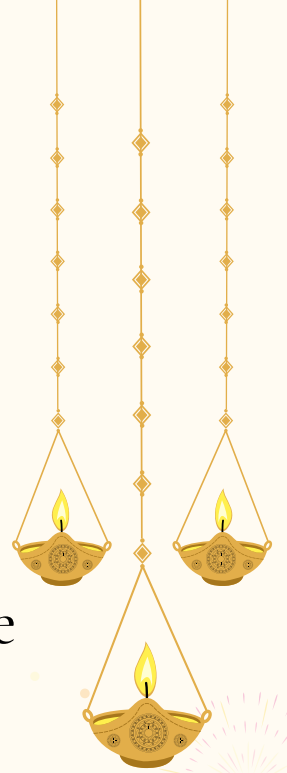

Choose Silk Saree over any other Saree

Choose India over imports

Choose emotion over money

रेशमी धागों में बुनी है परंपरा की कहानी,
हर रंग में झलकती है त्यौहारों की निशानी।
नारी की शोभा, सौंदर्य की पहचान,
हर साड़ी में बसता है संस्कृति का मान।

Join the #MySilkSaree Movement

- ✓ Buy GI-tagged Silk Sarees
- ✓ Share a picture with your Saree
- ✓ Tag your Saree with

#SareeInFestivals

#MySilkSaree

#SilkSaree

#BuyIndian

#MycultureMysareeThisDiwali

#DiwaliWithIndia

IF YOU WANT TO SUPPORT THIS MOVEMENT

CONTACT US

coordinator@ripaonline.com

“रेशमी आँचल में सजी है संस्कृति की चमक,
हर तह में छुपी है भारत की अनमोल दमक।”